New Treaty With China Mentioned By Secy. Kellogg

Memorandum on the same subject not touched upon in long awaited Chinese Policy Declaration of Secretary Kellogg.

Washington, Jan. 27 (AP).—The United States has notified all Chinese legations and the powers signatory to the Washington conference treaties that if proper delegates can be agreed upon in the war torn country stand ready to negotiate either in concert with other nations, or alone, if necessary a new treaty and extra territorial treaties with China.

However, until new treaties are negotiated with "somebody representing China," and ratified by the Senate, existing pacts "cannot be changed."

These are the cardinal points in Secretary Kellogg's long awaited Chinese policy declaration, made public last night, in the form of a statement, and making no mention of the British memorandum on the subject, to which it had first been supposed to be an answer.

The pronouncement pointed out that American naval forces will be in Chinese waters to "protect American life and property in event Chinese authorities are unable to afford such protection," asserted the United States has watched with sympathetic interest the "nationalist movement of China," and expressed desire to observe strict neutrality between Chinese factions and to deal with that country in "a most liberal spirit," as to unequal treaties, all that was required of China, in statement said, was protection, "on equal opportunity with the nations of other powers to reside in and to pursue their legitimate occupations without special privileges, monopolies or spheres of special interest or influence."

While the statement on its face did not develop any wide variance of opinion with that outlined by the press, it did point out that the United States had no concessions in this. On this point, President Kellogg believes there is some difference for differences in American foreign policy in dealing with China. The statement also asserted the United States "has never maintained any imperialistic attitude toward China and said the only motive before it in considering a treaty was "with whom it dealt."

"If China can agree upon the appointment of delegates representing the authorities or the people of the country," it said "we are prepared to negotiate such a treaty."

Forces Race To Shanghai

British Land and Sea Forces and Cantonese Army Race to International Settlement—If Foreign Quarter is Jeopardized Action Will Be Taken.

London, Jan. 27 (AP).—For the next six weeks British officialdom will focus its attention on Shanghai, for on the developments there depends whether the British defense force of about 20,000 men, now being mobilized, will be brought into actual service.

A race is on for the pivotal city between the British land and sea forces and the Chinese nationalists of the southern, or Cantonese army. Should the Cantonese succeed in getting near enough to the great international settlement to cause a situation in any way threatening the life and property of foreigners, then, and only then, the British foreign office says, his majesty's forces in company with available Japanese, French and American troops will take a stand. These troops, it is explained, probably will be spread along a 21 mile line so as to completely cut off Shanghai from the interior.

Emphasis is given by the foreign office to its statement that the question of control of Chekiang province is to the limits of Shanghai's international settlement is one solely between the governor of Chekiang, Marshal Sun Chuan Fang, and the Chinese Cantonese army of General Chiang Kai Shek, in which the British will not interfere. Nothing will be done if the Cantonese succeed in capturing and occupying the international city of Shanghai, but should the foreign quarter be jeopardized, prompt action will be taken.

"There is no state of war in China," were the words used by Lieutenant General Philip Chetwode, commander in chief at Shanghai, in the radio broadcast to a contingent of British troops. He told the soldiers they were going to "prevent the Chinese from being able to do anything to harm the foreigners," and admonished them to "keep your temper."

Chinese CRY, Jan. 27 (AP).—The three submarines mentioned on the last page in the midst of a race to the north of here, were today, said a radio message from the ship's commandant, which passed through to their aid.

Browning Counsel Study Testimony

After Two Days of Testimony Browning Counsel of What He is Accused Of—Case Will Be Re-opened Monday.

White Plains, N. Y., Jan. 27 (AP).—Counsel for Edward West Browning, New York real estate man, today began a careful study of the verbatim testimony given the last two days here in the separation suit brought by the realtor against his young wife, the former Frances (Peaches) Heenan.

In these two days, Mr. Browning, who was denied a bill of particulars some weeks ago, learned from his wife, her mother, friends and doctors, of what he is accused in that nature of alleged acts of cruelty during the six months of his marriage.

So brief and rapid was the handling of his wife's case, which rested yesterday, that it was found at 2.12 p. m. that Mr. Browning's counsel, after ending their cross-examinations, had no witnesses in the court with whom to begin rebuttal of Mrs. Browning's charges, which constitute her legal answer to his suit accusing her of abandonment.

When the case reopens here at 10 o'clock Monday morning, Supreme Court Justice Seeger will resume his position as judge of the hearing, which will continue to be open to the public and the press, he said last night.

Protests from John S. Sumner of the New York Society for the Prevention of Vice, he said, had already been answered by him, if Mr. Sumner would refer back to the announcement made at the time the hearing was declared open.

Law Is Against Secrecy.

At that time, Justice Seeger pointed out, that while ordinarily he would grant a secret hearing to persons desiring it, he had found nothing to lead him to believe that the parties in the present separation action had ever sought secrecy.

Justice Seeger explained that the "policy of our law is against secrecy except in such cases as are definitely set forth in the law," and said he believed the rules of law would uphold his decision for a public trial.

Mr. Browning, who left here yesterday afternoon on the veritable crest of a wave of humanity, took with him his big black case with the red E. W. B. initials on it. The case, it was shown yesterday, contains most of Mr. Browning's evidence against his wife, love letters and newspaper evidence in which he hopes to show that he was an affectionate husband and that his wife left him "willfully and without cause."

The conclusion of the main body of Mrs. Browning's side of the separation suit, was followed by a statement by John E. Mack, of Browning counsel. He said that if the court adjourned the trial until Monday, when he had made arrangements for the Browning witnesses to appear, he would promise to close the case in two days.

All the principals were either in New York city or at their homes in other parts of the state today, resting after two days of crowd battling here and snow bucking in the little town of Carmel, Putnam county, where Browning's counsel closed their abandonment testimony taking Monday.

The grilling in the heavily packed court rooms seemed hardest on Mrs. Browning, who three times in her testimony here, broke down in tears.

Browning, dressed with punctiliousness and conducting himself with alertness and suavity among his five attorneys, is expected to take the stand to defend himself against the cruelty charges soon after the resumption of the trial.

Cobb and Speaker Are Cleared of All Charges by Landis

And Given Permission To Re-join Their Withdrawal From Baseball, and Return To Reserve Lists—Judge Landis's Decision.

Chicago, Jan. 27 (AP).—Ty Cobb and Tris Speaker today were cleared of all charges which might make them ineligible for participation in professional baseball, in a decision by Commissioner Landis and given permission to re-join their withdrawal from baseball and return to the reserve lists of the Detroit Tigers and Cleveland Indians, respectively.

Cobb and Speaker appeared before Commissioner Landis November 27, and were informed that Dutch Leonard, retired pitcher formerly with Detroit, had turned over letters to the American League stating that the game of September 25, 1919, between Detroit and Cleveland, had been fixed. Cobb, Speaker and Smokey Joe Wood, branded the charge as false after they learned that Leonard had included them as parties to the arrangement.

"This is the Cobb-Speaker case," said the decision by Commissioner Landis. "These players have not been, nor are they now, found guilty of fixing a ball game. By no decent system of justice could such a finding be made. Therefore they were not placed on the ineligible list."

"As they desire to re-join their withdrawal from baseball the league has granted at their requests, in the circumstances, detailed above, are cancelled and these players' names are restored to the reserve lists of those clubs."

More Announcement Harmful.

The decision pointed out that the mere announcement of charges of the character placed against Cobb and Speaker, whatever the personality or motives of the accuser, or the severity or even absence of evidence supporting the charges, would be harmful to the accused players, experience having shown that a vindictive by baseball authority, based upon a manifest insufficiency or even a total failure of supporting proof, had been labelled a "whitewash."

"While they insisted they had no doubt of their ability to answer the charges," the decision pointed out, "they were concerned about the possible effect upon themselves and others in whom they were deeply interested. They appeared to be particularly disturbed respecting the situation of Joe Wood."

"These considerations," as Cobb and Speaker represented the matter to me brought about their desire to quit baseball despite the appreciation of the facts that such action might be misconstrued. Inasmuch, therefore, as Leonard's attendance could neither be induced nor enforced, the commissioner consented that the hearing be put over indefinitely and it was understood that would be the end of the matter, unless conditions thereafter should change as to require a different course. It was pointed out at the time that a number of people knew or had heard of the Leonard charges and of the Cobb and Wood letters, and the likelihood of suspicion and rumor resulting from a retirement in these circumstances was fully destroyed, and it was definitely understood that the interests of all concerned might thereafter require a public statement setting forth the charges and the answers."

Gossip and Rumor Dead.

"The American League directors were informed of the status of the players and that Cobb and Speaker desired to leave baseball for the reasons stated. Accordingly, the Detroit and Cleveland clubs granted releases and the American League directors rescinded their resolution calling for a hearing, with the same understanding that this ended the matter unless subsequent developments should necessitate a hearing and publication. Shortly thereafter, gossip and rumor got busy, as usually happens when these two kindly, sympathetic agencies are at work. They left in their wake a variety of propoganda infinitely more harmful to the individuals concerned than the truth could possibly be. Many press associations and scores of newspapers were persistently demanding the fact, therefore, Cobb, Speaker and Wood were called to Chicago and the situation laid before them. They all realized that untrue, distorted and garbled accounts were being insinuated and agreed that a hearing had become practical and even with Leonard persisting in staying away."

"Accordingly, a hard effort was made to have him attend, but again he refused. The hearing was held and the commissioner at once issued the record for publication in accordance with his definite understanding with Cobb, Speaker and Wood."

Speaker Well Pleased.

Cleveland, Jan. 27 (AP).—Tris Speaker, in a brief statement to The Associated Press today, said he was well pleased with the decision of Commissioner Landis clearing him of the Dutch Leonard charges and declared he expects to be in uniform next season to serve in the baseball world that he is the Tris Speaker of old.

Cold Wave Down To 25 and 30 in New York State

Sub-Zero Temperatures Prevailed Throughout the State Last Night—Train Service Shattered—Rising Temperatures Bring Relief.

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 27 (AP).—A forecast of "rising temperatures" brought a little comfort today to cities and towns of New York state which last night experienced the cold weather of the winter.

Sub-zero temperatures prevailed. Saranac Lake was apparently one of the coldest spots in the state, registering thermometer readings that varied between 25 and 30 below. Country districts around Gloversville recorded 25 and 27 below, while in Rome the low mark was 23 below. Albany's lowest was minus 11.

Ice companies made good use of the cold snap and were busy preparing for the harvest.

30 Below at Tupper Lake.

Tupper Lake, N. Y., Jan. 27 (AP).—Thirty-six degrees below zero was the contribution of this Adirondack village to the list of low temperatures today. It was the coldest morning of the winter.

Train Schedules Shattered.

Buffalo, Jan. 27 (AP).—Railroad transportation schedules in central and western New York were shattered today as the result of the cold wave. Trains reaching Buffalo were from 20 minutes to more than an hour late.

One of the first westbound trains across the station early this morning, ordinarily all Pullman, was opened to any passengers, and several unscheduled stops were made to pick up people whose trains were long overdue.

The lowest temperature here was five below zero at 5 a. m. Sunshine warmed the air a bit later in the morning.

Some Relief Today.

New York, Jan. 27 (AP).—Rising temperature today brought relief to eastern seaboard states that suffered through a night in which the mercury fell below zero in many places.

Official thermometer readings fixed Northfield, Vt., as the coldest spot, 22 degrees below being recorded there. But unofficial records from New England states, New York and Pennsylvania showed temperatures as low as 36 below, which was recorded at Tupper Lake, N. Y., in the Adirondack region.

The cold wave rode over the land on strong wind that veered from a northeasterly to a northwesterly direction, in general. Around Cape Cod the wind rose to a 55-mile-an-hour gale and damaged barges that broke their moorings.

Acetylene Blast Kills 6, Score Hurt

Explosion of Acetylene Gas Wrecks Mormon Chapel and Recreation Hall While Basketball Game Was in Progress.

Turner, Idaho, Jan. 27 (AP).—Six persons are dead and nearly a score injured, 12 seriously, as a result of an explosion of acetylene gas which wrecked a Mormon chapel and recreation hall here last night, while a basketball game was in progress.

Upwards of 200 persons had assembled in the one story frame building used as a church by the Latter Day Saints' congregation for a game between the Turner and Central, Idaho, teams. Shortly after play started the lighting system failed, and witnesses said some one lighted a match. A terrific explosion followed, wrecking the rear wall.

As the players and spectators started for the only remaining exit at the front of the building, a portion of the ceiling fell, hurling timbers and plaster into the crowd. Before the hall could be cleared the front wall collapsed. Most of the dead and many of the injured were found near this exit.

The body of James McCann, the janitor, was found in the basement where he had apparently gone to inspect the lighting system tanks. The bodies of his two sons and his brother, Brigham McCann, were near the exit. Mrs. James McCann and another child were severely cut and bruised. The family lived on a ranch near here.

Two more bodies were identified as those of Elmer Anderson and Iral Lewis, both members of the Central team. Mr. Lewis and Mrs. Anderson, who had accompanied their husbands to the game, were injured.

The more seriously injured were given first aid in a school house here while some were removed to Grace, Idaho, by volunteers who answered a call for doctors and nurses.

Some of the injured said they were literally blown from the building. Others near the door found little difficulty in escaping.

Contract Awarded For Remodeling Sharpe Residence

Twenty Additional Rooms Will Be Provided for Governor Clinton Hotel by Remodeling Famous Mansion, Part of Hotel Property—Complete Work by May 1.

Contract for the remodeling of the Sharpe residence property at the rear of the Governor Clinton Hotel will be signed this afternoon or Friday by the W. E. Joyce Company, Inc., of this city, the successful bidder for the job. Work will be started immediately and the contract calls for the completion of the work by May 1, so that the building will be ready for the early tourist season.

The plans as drawn by Architect George E. Lowe provide for the alteration of the present 17-room three-story building so as to provide 20 rooms in the house which will be known as The Governor Clinton Hotel Annex. The 20 rooms will give an occupancy of 35. During the height of the season last year the Governor Clinton Hotel was compelled to turn away many persons on account of lack of room. The rooms provided in the Sharpe mansion will be of necessity lower in price than rooms in the main building.

Rooms Modernly Equipped.

There will be running water in each room and some of the rooms will be connected en suite with bath facilities. On each floor will be public baths and toilets. Each room will be equipped with electrical connections for lighting, floor lamps, bed lights, etc.

Two sample rooms equipped with shower baths and door beds will be provided for in the annex.

At the rear will be a fire escape having access from each floor.

Telephone connections will be provided with direct connections with the main switch-board in the hotel lobby and the water supply will be connected with the system in the main hotel and operated through the same meters.

In addition to the extra rooms there will be built-in closets, linen closets, janitor's rooms and other facilities for the help.

Same as Main Hotel Rooms.

The sleeping rooms will be in exact keeping with the rooms in the main hotel building in regard to furnishings, etc. All baths will be tiled and the plumbing fixtures will be of the best with brass piping. In five of the rooms which now have hard wood floors, such floors will remain but in the other rooms the floors will be covered with carpet. The black and white tile in the hall will be repaired and used without alteration.

The electric lighting will be new with modern fixtures. The heating arrangement has not yet been determined and it is not definitely known yet whether it will be possible to connect the present hotel heating system with the annex or whether it will be more economical to provide a separate heating system.

Included in the contract is provision for the painting of the exterior of the building as well as decorating the entire interior.

After Floor Plan.

The additional rooms provided are made possible by altering the floor plan of the present rooms, which are large.

The entrance will be through a large lobby with alcove which will provide space for a reception room or sitting room.

The Sharpe residence was moved from its former location on the present site of the hotel to the rear of the lot with the intention of using it at a future date for additional rooms as is now being done.

The used cars will be put through a repair process paralleling the manufacturing process at every step, he says, and the policy will mark the first comprehensive move by a manufacturer to turn the used car field from a business into an asset.

20 Below Zero Registered Here

Ferryboat Transport Continues Trip to Rhinecliff Through Heavy Ice—Frozen Water Pipes Cause Big Demand for Plumbers.

Riding on a chill, biting wind zero weather swept into Kingston Wednesday night driving the mercury in the thermometers down until they registered as low as 20 degrees below zero. A trail of frozen water pipes and shivering residents was left in the wake of the sub-zero weather which at 7 o'clock this morning still held the zero in an icelike grip with thermometers registering from 6 to 12 degrees below. At noon the weather had somewhat moderated and thermometers registered five degrees above zero.

Wednesday was an exceptionally cold day, made more so by the piercing wind that nipped ears and face and driving the thermometers at noon down to as low as 10 degrees above zero. During the afternoon the weather gradually grew colder until at 10 p. m. thermometers were registering far below the zero mark.

Ferry Encounters Trouble.

The open water in the Rondout creek which had been broken up by the trips of the ferry Transport and the tug Rob had again frozen tight during the night, and this morning the ferry had to battle heavy ice to make her trips, and was unable to keep to regular running schedule.

The Transport left Kingston on her first trip this morning at 6.30 o'clock, but did not get across the Hudson river to Rhinecliff until 8.30 o'clock. The ferry had to break a channel through the heavy ice that had formed during the night and was assisted by the tug Rob. During the remainder of the day every endeavor was made by the ferry to meet the New York Central trains. It was so cold on the river that as fast as a channel was made through the ice, it would freeze over and the ferry on the return trip was forced to break a new track. The tug Rob was kept busy assisting in keeping the channel open for the ferry.

Plumbers Kept Busy.

Frozen water pipes all over town kept the plumbers busy answering calls for assistance in thawing out water systems.

Householders when they arose this morning found it necessary to drive the furnace under forced draft to thoroughly heat the house, and coal bins were greatly diminished by the attacks made on them with the shovel in the hands of the man of the house. All over town, in stores and residences, the windows were coated heavily with ice.

Even the policemen, who are accustomed to being out in all sorts of weather, felt the cold, and many of the officers on street duty wore earflaps for the first time this winter.

22 Below at Grand Hotel.

The lowest temperature recorded in the Catskill Mountains was 22 degrees below zero reported at Grand Hotel while at Bloomville 20 below was reported.

The weather man has promised warmer weather for Friday, and it is hoped that his prediction will be realized.

Fist Fight at Miners' Meeting

Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 27 (AP).—A fist fight between Powers Haggood of Crosson, Pa., Harvard graduate and son of a prominent Indianapolis manufacturer, and a sergeant at arms, temporarily disrupted today's meeting of the United Mine Workers of America, in convention here.

Haggood, who claims to be a delegate but whose claims the credentials committee ignored, attempted to speak on a resolution assailing the United Mine Workers' Journal, official publication of the union, for not printing the views of the minority faction of the miners.

President John L. Lewis denied Haggood the floor and when a sergeant at arms attempted to seat him Haggood resisted. The melee followed but soon was quelled.

Haggood claims he is denied a seat in the convention because of his opposition to Lewis. The young man recently was expelled from a Pennsylvania district of the union because of his radical views and because it was asserted, he is not a miner. Haggood is a proponent of nationalization of the mine.

Dr. Nelson Sets Fire to Residence In Thawing Pipes

Damage Estimated at $4,000 Caused to Main Street Residence—Flames Gain Considerable Headway Before Firemen Are Summoned—Damage Confined to Rear of Building.

The cold weather of today was responsible for a very severe fire loss to the residence property of Dr. J. R. Nelson, 23 Main street, just before noon. Dr. Nelson, while engaged in thawing out a frozen water pipe in the cellar of his home in some way set fire to the house. Before the firemen were notified the flames had gained considerable headway and when a still alarm was sent in, the firemen responded immediately but found a bad blaze in progress. The flames had found their way from the cellar at the rear of the house between the partitions and before the fire was out the rear of the house was considerably damaged.

Smoke which filled the interior of the house caused considerable damage to the walls and furnishings. The damage by fire was confined to the rear of the house, principally in the kitchen and dining room at the rear. When the firemen arrived they found the flames burning briskly inside and outside the house at the rear. Chemicals were used and two lines of hose were stretched in case of need. However, on the arrival of Chief Murphy within three minutes after the still alarm had been sent in, he ordered an alarm sounded from Box 86, Main and Fair streets, and volunteers responded. This assistance was of great aid to the members of the paid department, who were able to devote their attention to the flames at the rear while volunteers manned the hose lines and placed them in position for use in case of necessity.

By very efficient work the fire was confined to the rear of the house and finally extinguished with the chemicals. It was not necessary to use the two lines of hose which had been stretched.

Most of the damage was at the rear of the house, where the flames had gained considerably headway before the fire department was summoned. The kitchen and dining room at the rear were gutted and the outside of the building considerably burned and scorched where the flames traveled up the side to the roof.

The damage to the building, which is of frame construction, is estimated at perhaps $3,000.

Flagman Killed in College Point Cut

Thomas Ryan of West Park Struck by Train While Walking Tracks Tuesday Afternoon—Body Removed to Highland.

Thomas Ryan, 53 years old, of West Park, a flagman employed by the West Shore railroad, was killed instantly when struck by a train Tuesday afternoon in the College Point rock cut.

Ryan was working in the West Park section and from 3 o'clock in the afternoon until 11 at night he was on duty in the College Point cut, walking the tracks and watching for avalanches of rock or ice, which at this time of year and the spring, are likely to roll down on the tracks. It was in the cut when struck.

Train No. 12, a passenger train southbound, struck him and threw him for some distance in the air. The engineer witnessed the accident and stopped the train while Ryan's lifeless body was lifted into the baggage car and taken to Highland. It was removed from the railroad station at the direction of Coroner George Sauter to the undertaking rooms of Clifton Carpenter.

A preliminary examination showed that Ryan had received a fractured skull, a broken back and other injuries.

He had been employed by the railroad for about six years and was well known in the section. He is survived by his wife.

Funeral services will be held in the Ascension Church at West Park on Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Interment in the Ascension cemetery.

A Victory Without Profit

THE battle of New Orleans was fought after a treaty of peace had been signed by the United States and England and therefore served no good purpose except to prepare a great political career for the victor, Gen. Andrew Jackson, known to his frontier admirers as "Old Hickory."

Jackson was in many respects a typical product of the frontier. Tall and of tough fiber, he was loyal, unselfish and a proud, implacable enemy. A high temper, reckless courage and punctilious ideas of personal honor made him a man of unquestioned consequence in an age when dueling was still fashionable, and a fine intellect fitted him for the place he was to occupy in national politics.

During the War of 1812 Jackson, as a leader of militia in the South, carried on a successful campaign against the hostile Creek Indians, overcoming many obstacles common to militia warfare of that period. When William Henry Harrison resigned as a major of the regular army, Andrew Jackson was elevated to that rank, and sent against the Indians of Florida, who had been stirred to hostility by British agents.

News that the British planned an attack on New Orleans drew Jackson and his scanty force to that city in January, 1815. Sir Edward Pakenham, brother-in-law of the duke of Wellington, landed a force below New Orleans in January, 1815. Jackson added volunteers to his little army and constructed fortifications of bales of cotton on a position between the city and the attacking force. Pakenham recklessly assaulted the entrenched forces and was badly beaten, being himself killed in action. The battle occurred on January 8, 1815, fifteen days after the treaty of Ghent had been signed, but before the news of peace could reach this country. Notwithstanding the military futility of the victory, Americans were filled with joy over it, for they had not forgotten the burning of Washington by the British six months before.

Jackson became a popular hero and in 1824 received a plurality—but not a majority—in the race for President. The house of representatives elected John Quincy Adams and Jackson became a martyr. Four years later he was elected and in 1832 was re-elected.

Are you ready for it?

Montreal Man Lays

Claim to Labrador

London.—Rev. Isaac de la Penhe of the Sephardi congregation of Spanish and Portuguese Jews at Montreal has just submitted to the privy council of the British empire a modest claim to ownership of the whole of Labrador. The land claimed comprises 811,000 square miles—about ten times the area of England.

Penhe bases his claim, according to the Jewish World, upon a charter granted to one Joseph de la Penhe, a wealthy merchant of Rotterdam, by King William III.

According to Reverend Penhe his ancestor on one occasion saved King William and several members of the royal family from drowning when shipwrecked, and the king in appreciation bestowed upon "Joseph de la Penhe and his heirs possession of Labrador."

GRASSHOPPERS, ONCE PEST, NOW MISSED IN WYOMING

Cowboy State Now Ready to Declare Truce With Ancient Enemy and Welcome Them Back.

Cheyenne, Wyo.—Wyoming wants more grasshoppers. The cowboy state is ready not only to declare a truce with its ancient enemy, but to bid the pest welcome home to the Big Horn basin.

In the Wyoming of antiquity the hoppers flew in clouds thick enough to obscure the sun. Five years ago the basin had plenty. The plague did its annual damage to farm crops. Turkeys were introduced to combat the insects, and did so successfully. They routed the hoppers from the farm land and pursued the depleted insect army to mountain terrain.

Now a severe decline threatens the grasshopper crop and lamentations are being heard from the ranchmen, who in the meantime have discovered that they can reap enormous profits from turkeys, grown half wild on the grasshopper range in the mountain foothills. The turkey growing industry has increased by leaps and bounds; grasshoppers have accordingly declined. Grasshopper preserves for the propagation of turkey food are a possibility of the future.

Big Horn basin turkeys, excellent others because the climate and food conditions found in the basin make it a natural paradise for turkeys, already are famous all over the United States for their superiority. They are sought eagerly by dealers, who pay exceptional prices to the growers, 41 cents a pound being the 1925 rate. Big Horn basin ranchmen can grow rich on turkeys if only they can produce enough fowls. An unlimited number of fowls can be produced if only the grasshopper range bears up. As matters are, production cost is one-third, or less, of the selling price. And turkeys prefer grasshoppers.

Carnegie Hero Works Way Through College

Eugene, Ore.—Although he has access to $1,000 from the Carnegie hero fund, awarded him in addition to a medal for bravery, Vernon Callaway, University of Oregon senior, is working his way through school by washing dishes. This became known when trustees of the Carnegie fund wrote the university for a record of Callaway's scholastic standing.

Callaway received the awards for attempting to save the life of a schoolmate at St. Joe, Idaho. The ice broke while the boys were skating and the friend fell through.

Callaway jumped in and tried to keep him from sinking until help came. The boy drowned, however, before help came.

One Man Spends Time in Collecting Odd Names

Tacoma, Wash.—Speaking of names, D. W. Clapperton declares he has found many others as bad or worse than his own. For twenty-five years he has carried a book in which he jots down names of people whose nomenclature is unusual, and it contains a Whitefeather, Ironspeer, Waggon-wheel, Leathertree, Grindstone, Shaver, Brickbat, and Whetstone. The shortest he has heard of is Et.

Ban Bobbed Hair on

Swedish Opera Stage

Stockholm, Sweden.—Only young dancers with long hair will get front-row positions at the Royal opera of Stockholm this season, Mrs. Lisa Soder, the new ballet mistress, has ruled.

"Not because bobs are unbecoming to young girls," she says, "but because most of the opera audience the jazz and shimmy age, and so ballet dancer can compete with the same shenanigans and grace with a wig on her head as with her own natural locks flowing about."

None of the three premier dancers of the Royal opera staff—Elena Strandin, Siri Osterlund or Lily Holmberg—have had their hair shorn.

Tanlac My Life-Long Friend Says D. Van Alstyne

Respected Selkirk carpenter suffered agony for two years. Could not eat or sleep. Weak, worn out and discouraged. Now, at 62, enjoys good health, exudes good cheer, enthusiasm and energy. Gives full credit to Tanlac.

David Van Alstyne lives on Route No. 2, Selkirk, Albany County, N. Y. At 62 years he works steadily as a journeyman carpenter. But for two years he had a different story to tell. Here it is, in his own words:

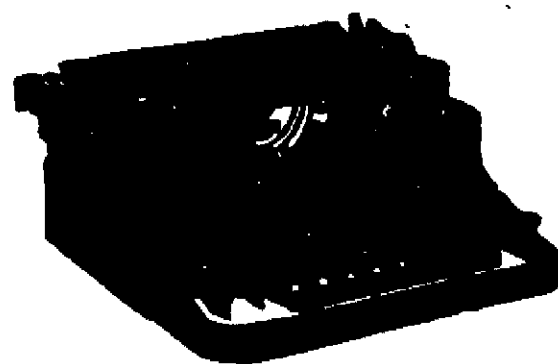

"I was so run down from indigestion that my system was completely shattered. I suffered from bloating, stomach cramps, and dizziness. Constipation and sluggish liver bothered me and my hand shook from sheer nervousness. At night I tossed and rolled in bed; I suffered all the miseries of insomnia. My appetite vanished and I hardly ate enough to keep me alive. Tanlac helped me so that I now eat and sleep normally again. I feel in splendid shape. My appetite is keen and I digest my food without the slightest discomfort. The old dizziness, weakness, aches and pains bother me no more. I give full credit to Tanlac for my present fine health, and endorse it for all who suffer as I did."

THE NAVY YARD

The next adventure the children had was to be taken to the Navy Yard. The Admiral had promised Uncle John to show the two children around. They imagined the Admiral would be a great man with a deep voice and that they would be tremendously afraid of him. Still they had made up their minds that they wouldn't be too afraid of him for they wanted to be shown around. He was really very pleasant and did not frighten them in the least.

"I shall show you," he said, "the docks where the ships are repaired when they have been damaged by storms and then they need to be fixed. One ship is going out into the stream now as she is ready for the sea again, while another is being brought in."

There Douglas and Dorothy saw two ships passing each other by just the narrowest margin, while all the sailors were pulling at ropes and officers were calling out directions.

"I should think they couldn't help bumping into each other," said Douglas.

But the Admiral was now ready to show them the shops and the machinery which seemed so powerful.

He let them take a little trip in a submarine and they saw how the boat went under water, while only the periscope at the top stayed above to let those down below see where the big boats on the sea were going.

"To me the submarine is the most extraordinary invention of the world," said Dorothy.

"And how they can ever live under the water is more than I can see," said Douglas.

"Just to have that little top sticking out above the water! I should think men who went in these boats would have to be distant relatives of the fishes to be able to breathe," Dorothy added.

"But we breathed when we were down in the submarine," said Douglas. "It's the biggest wonder of all and our greatest adventure," he added solemnly after they had left the Navy Yard.

Now they traveled over to the city again and now they were on their way from the Battery to Governor's Island.

"Oh, what a funny place," said Dorothy, as she looked now at Castle William.

"It is round and all stone," exclaimed Douglas, "and there are such queer little windows all about."

"All the men are in uniform," said Dorothy.

"Yes," said Uncle John, "they are soldiers and officers. Soon we'll see a parade."

"Really?" the children exclaimed. "Really and truly," said Uncle John.

And to the great delight of Douglas and Dorothy they saw a fine parade on the parade grounds that day.

They heard the band play, and they saw the soldiers salute the American flag, or the Colors as they said.

Uncle John showed the children the officers' homes, the provision stores, and at last it was almost time for going home. The sun looked as if it would go down behind a distant hill any moment now. But still Uncle John kept showing them different interesting sights, until at last a great gun was fired.

Dorothy jumped a little, because, of course, she had not been expecting a gun to go off though Douglas had not been so surprised. He somehow fancied that it would be in keeping with the appearance of Castle William and of an island called Governor's Island.

But it came so suddenly he was just the least little bit startled, or perhaps it would be better to say he was a little bit surprised.

"What was that?" Dorothy exclaimed after a moment.

"That was the sunset gun," answered Uncle John, "which is always fired from Castle William."

"What is a sunset gun?" asked Dorothy.

Uncle John laughed heartily, and Douglas laughed, too, for he felt that Dorothy had said something quite funny—though he did not know himself what a sunset gun meant.

"A sunset gun," said Uncle John, "means the gun they fire at sunset. Every day as the sun goes down they fire a gun from this fort—so it means the day is over."

"What a lot of bother they pay the gun," said Dorothy.

"And oh," Douglas added, "but it is so nice to know what one is going to find out next!"

And both Dorothy and Uncle John agreed most cordially with Douglas.

There are Many Insurance Agents in Kingston but There Is Only ONE McENTEE Agency

For fifty years this Agency has been furnishing reliable protection to the insuring public at lowest cost while representing only the best and strongest companies.

Mr. Charles Ramsey, one of Kingston's leading citizens, tells us that he has been laying his automobile up every winter for several years but that he never knew he was entitled to a refund on his liability insurance until he read our "Ad" telling auto owners of this money saving service. All who are insured with the McEntee Agency have been advised of this service each year. Outlines Program Of Reforestation For New York

Senator Hewitt Prepares Resolution Seeking An Amendment To The Constitution Authorizing Legislation To Issue Bonds To Accomplish Program.

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 27 (P).—A proposal that New York undertake a 20-year reforestation program, spending $5,000,000 a year in replanting with trees 6,000,000 acres of idle land, was advanced today by Charles J. Hewitt, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee.

As the first step to pave the way for carrying out the proposal, Mr. Hewitt prepared for introduction a concurrent resolution seeking an amendment to the Constitution authorizing the Legislature to issue bonds with which to accomplish the program. No more than $5,000,000 bonds could be issued each year under terms of the measure and the total of reforestation bonds would be limited to $100,000,000.

"Those of us," Senator Hewitt said, "who have thought about the matter at all fully realize that within the next fifty years the people of this country will be put to it to find a sufficient timber supply. Some way should be provided to prevent this catastrophe. Thus far the state has confined itself in the reforestation movement to the forest preserve where, under the provisions of the Constitution, no timber trees can be cut. To meet the needs of the people for lumber, reforestation must be conducted on a much broader basis and I am proposing an amendment to the Constitution that, if adopted by the people will complete the job within a quarter of a century and provide that the major part of the cost will be paid by the generation that profits by the work."

"The 1924 plantings in New York state were the largest that have ever been made in one year in any state in the country, but are still too small to hold out any hope of relief for a condition which must be faced within the next half century."

Thirty Societies Will Celebrate

The Christian Endeavor movement was founded in Portland, Maine, forty-six years ago by the Rev. Dr. Francis E. Clark, who is still active head of the movement, and the birthday of the organization will be celebrated during the period January 28 to February 6.

The Kingston Local Union of Christian Endeavor will celebrate the event on February 2 with a social in the parish hall of the Church of the Comforter.

The Christian Endeavor Society at Highland plans to have three special meetings. The first will be on Sunday evening, January 30, when the program, "Crystals from the Crystal Palace" will be given. Sunday evening, February 6, the society will present a pageant written for C. E. Societies, "The Keeper of the Keys." There will also be a midweek service.

It is expected that the thirty or more societies in Ulster county will hold special programs during the celebration period.

SAPPHIRE WANTS FITTING MEMORIAL TO CLINTON.

Jan. 27, 1927.

To the Editor of The Freeman.
Sir:—The year 1927 marks the sesquicentennial of some important dates in connection with the formation of the state of New York and of stirring events enacted in our historic Kingston.

The other day, a public spirited man asked the writer if he had anything in mind for the celebration of these events now under contemplation and it was suggested that a Kingston monument to George Clinton, to be unveiled on that occasion, would be a grand thing, particularly fitting and appropriate.

Here in Kingston, the first capital, the adoption of the first Constitution took place, April 20, 1777, and was followed by the incidental elections and organization of the state government.

The inauguration of General George Clinton as first governor, July 20, 1777, is one of the great events of those days.

Kingstonians take great pride in the fact that the inaugural of the great Empire State was right here in Kingston; but when visitors from all parts of the U. S. A. come to look over our historic city, they find no monument commemorating the 7-time governor and great leader of the state in its early years.

Fifty years ago, at the time of the centennial celebration of these events, a $50,000 effort was made toward a Clinton monument; but evidently the goal was set too high, for only $500 was authorized. The monument (project) was left to the grandchildren.

With present day prosperity, it would seem that local newspaper publicity might realize a handsome amount toward erecting upon the site of the birthplace of the state, a life-size statue of George Clinton in enduring bronze and to displace the statue of the man who was honored in state and nation, and one that would be an added attraction and creditable to Kingston.

With the hope that the suggestion may bring out further public expression that will result in prompt action by the proper committees and authorities in a fitting memorial statue to Governor Clinton, I am, Yours for Kingston,
C. H. SAPHIRE.

Misery Loves Company

LOLA was sitting on the chair lounge in the big, cheerful sun-room, watching her brother, who would have been quickly so that she might be out of doors.

In the distance she saw a cloud of dust rising into the trees and suddenly around the bend in the lane a dark-colored horse appeared.

"It must be the moving picture company they've been telling me about," she said, sitting as erect as the statue.

On past her windows and down the Northern driveway into the woods the scarlet coats drove their steeds. But just as the last man was about to take the stretch of private hedge that enclosed the garden, his horse stumbled and fell.

Lola gasped. The rider lay prostrate on the grass. The horse stood, frightened, at his side.

Quickly realizing that it was the hero of the play and that the others would return to pick him up when the photographers were ready to make the picture, Lola calmed herself.

Minutes lengthened and she saw the man writhe and turn as if in great pain. No one returned. He was alone. And Lola was powerless to go to him. And, besides, if it were a moving picture stunt she would not like to be caught in the film.

At last when she could stand it no longer, she rang the bell for the maid. "Wendy," she said, "do you see that man lying on the ground out there by the hedge—and the horse?"

The maid screamed and then listened while Lola told her what had taken place and what she believed it to be.

"But, no, Miss Lola, that there moving picture has left these parts a week ago. You forget you've been sick, Missy."

"Then get some one and go to the man. Call Doctor Stewart and tell him to come at once. Hurry, Wendy."

Lola's cheeks burned scarlet and she knew that she was getting too excited. She had never felt more helpless in her life and to think that she had let that poor man lie and suffer all this time. Why had no one missed him and returned for him?

When she saw the gardener, assisted by Wendy and her mother getting the man into the wheel chair that had been purchased for her, she felt relieved. And her relief settled into calm when she was assured by the gentle voice of Doctor Stewart in the hall.

"Broken leg," she heard. "No—can't be moved tonight."

And then her mother's soft, kindly hospitable tones: "Certainly, he may have the big chamber off the sunroom on this floor. Lola is in the sunroom, poor child. And to think she saw it all."

And then it happened that Howard Norton became a patient in Lola's father's home. Lola did not see him that night, but the following morning when she had had her breakfast and had learned the other sufferer's leg had been made comfortable through the skill of Doctor Stewart, she suggested that she be moved into the sunroom as usual.

"But—Mr. Norton—" began her mother.

"If he's anything like me he'll be glad of some one to pass away the time with—no matter who." Her mother could not help observing the added instant Lola took in her toilette. And she was glad of anything that would bring back the spontaneous love of life to the girl who had lain so long and suffered.

From her couch she could see the good-looking young patient in the big, four-post bed. They had both laughed at the introduction given by her mother and with that laugh, each knew that they would find much in common.

"I'm sorry to have to be shifted from here," said Howard that evening as he watched the golden rays of the sun on Lola's curls. "I don't know when I've seen such a spot."

"But—must you go? You live in a club and—Doctor Stewart surely won't want you in a hospital," protested Lola. She had spent a wonderful day, having her lunch and chatting with the man in the adjoining room.

"It has been an imposition already," he was saying.

"Nothing of the kind. And besides I'm fed up on myself. Just wait till you've had your leg six weeks and see how glad you are of—well, diversion, we'll call it." She laughed and he joined her, but his merriment was mixed with pain and worry.

She knew he should insist on going and yet something told him this was to be the happiest moment of his life—this time spent here, under the roof of Lola's father's home.

Doctor Stewart and Lola's mother, conferring at length, decided to let Howard remain—to insist upon it. His state was to take entire charge of him.

"It has done Lola good already," she who did doctor said to the girl's mother. "And I know all about young Norton's family."

Lola and Howard read together, listened to music on the radio together, ate their meals while talking, discussing everything from horses to psychology together and—fell in love.

"Such a perfectly delicious way to begin a summer," Lola was saying a couple of weeks later.

"No matter what the beginning," he promptly replied. "It has to end only in eternity."

And she was married.

Local Jews on Executive Board

Leon D. Gelson and Charles Katz of this city were elected to the executive board of the Eastern New York State Region of the United Palestine Appeal at the first conference of the region which was held in Albany on Sunday, January 16, and which was attended by a number of local Jewish citizens.

County Judge leaders Bookstein of Albany, widely known leader and jurist, was elected regional chairman and Joseph Goodman of Troy was elected regional treasurer.

At the conference, 500 men and women delegates from over sixty communities east of Rochester heard Dr. Chaim Weizmann, president of the World Zionist Organization; Mrs. Anna Moskowitz Kram, national director of organization of the Hadassah; Judge Irving Lehman of the Court of Appeals, son-in-law of Nathan Straus, and County Judge leaders Bookstein of Albany, delivering addresses appealing for support by the Jews of New York state for the Palestine movement.

At the noon meeting in the afternoon, which was held in Hermann Blocher Hall, which was crowded by 1,000 visitors, Dr. Weizmann was greeted by Dr. Frank P. Garver, state commissioner of education and president of the University of the State of New York, who spoke in the chamber of Governor Smith, and by Mayor Thompson of Albany, both of whom paid glowing tributes to the mission of the Jewish people and hoped that the Palestine movement would meet with great success, pledging themselves in behalf of their own capacities of the government to do all within their power to further the aims of the movement.

Dr. Weizmann in a brilliant address declared that the question as to the number of immigrants who could enter Palestine was irrelevant, that Palestine only required that there should be a Jewish majority, amounting to perhaps two millions, and that Palestine Jews would be able to populate and build up, in co-operation with the Arabs, the vast undeveloped Arab states of Trans-Jordan, the Hedjaz, Lebanon and Arabia proper.

At the banquet in honor of Dr. Weizmann at the Ten Eyck Hotel, Judge Irving Lehman acted as the toastmaster.

A quota of $250,000 was adopted by the conference and local quotas apportioned among all the communities.

The Episcopal church in England and in the United States has always maintained "ecumenical" courts. However, these courts are not in session except when specially called. There is one that is ready to function in each diocese in England and in the United States.

Files Complaint With Governor

Commission Will Investigate Charges Against Montgomery County Officials and Mayor of Amsterdam, Brought by Rev. Thomas Adams.

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 27 (AP).—Charges of neglect of duty were made against District Attorney Andrew J. Cullick and Sheriff Seely Hodge, of Montgomery county, and Mayor Carl Salmon of Amsterdam in a complaint filed with Governor Smith today.

The complaint, signed by the Rev. Thomas Adams of Amsterdam, alleges that the officers named have failed to fulfill their duties in not closing houses of ill fame and gambling dens.

Accompanied by the Rev. Asa H. Edie and Leslie J. Tompkins, also of Amsterdam, the Rev. Mr. Adams presented his complaint to the governor in person.

Governor Smith said he would appoint a commission to investigate the charges.

Grand Jury Investigating.

Amsterdam, N. Y., Jan. 27 (AP).—Mayor Carl S. Salmon of this city, and District Attorney Andrew J. Cullick, and Sheriff Seely Hodge of Montgomery county, named in charges of neglect of duty filed with Governor Smith, were in Poughkeepsie today in connection with a grand jury investigation into alleged vice conditions in the city and county. The inquiry has been in progress for several days.

The Rev. Thomas Adams, who presented the complaint to Governor Smith, is pastor of Trinity Reformed Church here and from his pulpit has called attention to conditions which he said needed to be remedied. The Rev. Asa H. Edie is pastor of Forest Avenue Methodist Episcopal Church, while Leslie J. Tompkins, who also went to Albany when the charges were submitted, is secretary of the Amsterdam Young Men's Christian Association. None of the three would comment on the action.

Mr. Adams's allegations regarding existence of gambling were instrumental in starting the grand jury investigation.

Financial and Commercial

New York, Jan. 27 (P).—Occasional shifts of speculative sentiment again characterized today's stock market, but the undertone was fairly firm. Bear traders succeeded in uncovering a few new weak spots, but the apparent scarcity of the floating supply in a number of other issues, particularly among the motors, oils, utilities and equipments forced them to bid high in order to cover their commitments. An irregularly higher opening was followed by a sinking spell, but by early afternoon another dullness was under way, with trading dull on the tally.

Credit conditions continued easy but little hope was held out for a decrease in the New York Federal Reserve discount rate today. Another shipment of $6,200,000 in gold from France continued to arouse discussion. The only business news of interest aside from another increase in freight car loadings was an advance in steel scrap prices in the Chicago district.

Prospects of an early declaration of dividends on Erie first preferred stock, or the announcement of the revised "Nickel Plate" merger plan containing some guarantees to holders of that issue, stimulated speculative enthusiasm for the low priced rails.
Despite the failure of the Van Sweringens and the minority committee of the Chesapeake and Ohio to reach an agreement on merger terms, Wall Street was still of the opinion that the obstacles were not insurmountable.

SICK AND AID SOCIETY ENJOYS CHICKEN SUPPER.

A large and happy gathering sat down Wednesday night to a bountiful roast chicken supper served at the school hall by Chef Casper Ketterer and his efficient staff, being the invited guests of St. Peter's Sick and Aid Society. Following the supper
John Reis, Sr., of The Freeman force, entertained in his own inimitable way with German songs, the first of which was entitled "Johnnie Smoker." Then came the old-fashioned dances with Messrs. Pardee and Addie Mr. Pardee calling out with his reception. These two musicians are certainly artists in their line, and the enthusiasm with which each number was received leads one to the belief that the old-fashioned way of de-lousing is coming back into favor.

home service auditorium of the Central Hudson Gas and Electric Corporation, Kingston District, 5 Field Court, Wednesday, February 2, beginning at 1:30.

Miss Lucile Brewer, food preparation specialist from the state college of home economics, is giving this series of demonstrations for the Ulster County Home Bureau. In the meetings next week, which are the second in the series, Miss Brewer demonstrates the selection and preparation of vegetables. Vegetable chowder and loaf, sandwiches, salads and many other delicious ways of serving vegetables will be demonstrated.

Miss Brewer is an authority on food preparation, ranking second to none in this country. Any woman in Ulster county who fails to see these demonstrations is missing an opportunity that women from other states are only too glad to come to New York state to get, and this opportunity is brought to the very doors of Ulster county women. The demonstrations are open to everybody who wishes to take advantage of them. The Ulster County Home Bureau extends a cordial invitation to all.

32 Named in Election Probe

Pittsburgh, Jan. 27 (P).—The Allegheny county grand jury investigating alleged irregularities in the election last November, today recommended that informations be made against 32 persons, including 30 election board officers, a voter and alderman.

The recommendation of the jury will go to District Attorney Samuel Gardner, who, in turn, will prepare information upon which indictments will be asked.

The grand investigation was opened three weeks ago. Several hundred witnesses were heard, and during the inquiry the district attorney seized a number of ballot boxes. In one instance, a ballot box wanted by the authorities was not located. The box, stored in a school house, was in the custody of Alderman John H.
Carr, who was among those named by the jury today.

National WCTU Adopts Platform

Washington, Jan. 27 (P).—Strict personal observance of the prohibition law by all government officials, governors of states and public servants who have sworn loyalty to the Constitution was demanded in the platform adopted today by the midwinter conference of the National Woman's Christian Temperance Union.

The platform also calls for increased penalties for violations of the prohibition law and demands that bootleggers be held responsible for sickness or death resulting from the sale of poisonous or contraband liquor.

Suppression of manufacture and sale of hip flasks as well as utensils and ingredients employed in the making of drinks was asked on the ground such practices were in violation of the law.

The platform designated prohibition as the best method of dealing with the liquor question and made broad appeal for cooperation by citizens, newspapers, magazine writers, public entertainers and society leaders. Disparagement of the constitution, it said should be looked upon as bad form.

KINGSTON THEATRE AND OFFICE BUILDING (Broadway Theatre)

7% First Mortgage Bonds

Out of the total issue of $260,000, there is now available only a very small amount of 1937 maturity at the original offering price of 100 and interest.

The increasing demand for the bonds, we expect, will soon close out the entire issue. We then expect to quote the market—100 bid—103 asked.

We believe this entire issue of First Mortgage 7% Bonds will be refunded at a lower interest rate on the first call date which is January 1st, 1930. If so, the net return to investor will be over 8% as the call price is 105 and interest.

It is interesting to note, that more First Mortgage Bonds have been called before maturity on Theatre Buildings than on any other type of Real Estate, probably because of the unusual earning power in this type of property.

ROTARIANS ENTERTAINED WITH BUSINESS TALK

"Relations Between Competitors," was the topic for discussion at the Rotary Club luncheon this week, the program being in charge of the Committee on Business Methods. The speaker was Ernest M. Hicks, who presented the matter in a practical and common sense, rather than an ultra idealistic manner. Considerable discussion followed, all of it favorable to the position taken by Mr. Hicks.

Vincent A. Gorman gave a brief but brilliantly illuminating account of a luncheon with the New York Rotary Club at the Waldorf, C. C. Dumond sang in his wonderfully melodious and modulated voice two solos and Harry P. Dodge, who was a visitor, made the lions roar as in the good old days. Other visitors were Senator Marsh of Maryland and Mr. Taylor of Jabeville, Wisconsin.

Girl Reserves Hold Service

A Girl Reserve recognition service was held Tuesday, January 25, at 4 p. m., for the grade school girls. Miss Lichty and Miss Yerxa presided. The service is a serious but a beautiful one, with the girls standing in triangle formation holding lighted candles. The guests at the service were Mrs. George Rice, president of the Y. W. C. A.; Mrs. Frank Thompson, chairman of the educational committee; Miss Hull and Miss Cordes. Advisers to the Girl Reserve Clubs who were present were Miss Katharine Millard, Miss Florence Tappen, Miss Lillian Herdman and Miss Anna Quimby.

The following girls were admitted to membership in the Grade School Clubs:

"The Ever Ready Club" from School No. 6.—Sophie Dornbusch, Dorothy Strubel, Janet Evans, Evelyn Laid, Marguerite Terwilliger, Olga Zadaney, Maude Hopper, Dorothy Hayes, Bessie Burger, Hope Powell, Fern Van Ethen, Inez Roosa, Elsie Taylor, Gladys Tyler, Thelma North.

"Pep Club" from School No. 8.—Ethel Ellsworth, June Mac Fadden, Dorothy Thompson, June Adams.

Business Girls' Club Supper

In spite of the fact that the sleigh-ride party had been postponed, the Business Girls' Club supper at the Y. W. C. A. on Wednesday evening was one of the most enjoyable suppers of this season. In addition to the usual song-seasoned supper, the girls put over one of their cleverest "talking-match stunts," that pleased everybody. Miss Cordes of the high school faculty, always popular with Kingston girls, was present and gave the girls a clever talk on one of the modern novels, which was described as a "smelly" book throughout, both as to characters and settings. In order to get rid of the "smells" the girls played a fascinating game, different girls giving names of hero, heroine, scene of plot, and other details, which "Mickey" McLaughlin cleverly made into a "Short Story."

Next Wednesday night the girls will have supper at the Y. W. C. A. as usual. Then if the weather is possible, and the girls come warmly clad, they will go to Golden Rule Inn for an evening of tobogganing.

Rosamond Lampman, Lucile Coffin, Julia Brink.

"The More the Merrier Club" from School No. 5.—Virginia Brown, Margaret O'Connor, Eleanor LeWatsch.
